ACF Announces Funding for Studies and Analysis of CBO/FBO "Best Practices"

The Administration for Children and Families (ACF) has announced that competing applications are being accepted for grant funding to stimulate research and support a range of studies and analyses to examine the role and `best practices" of faith- and community-based organizations providing services in targeted study areas. The priority study areas are: Homelessness, hunger, at-risk children and youth, transition from welfare to work, or intensive rehabilitation services for those most in need such as addicts and prisoners.

ACF seeks "to build knowledge regarding the roles and promising approaches by diverse types of faith- and community-based organizations to provide services within five priority areas: homelessness, hunger, at-risk children, the transition from welfare to work, and intensive services for those most in need such as addicts and prisoners."

Any public organization, including state and local governments; private nonprofit organizations, including universities and other institutions of higher education, as well as faith-based organizations may apply. Applications may also be submitted by private for-profit organizations.

ACF will issue the Financial Assistance Awards under this announcement as grants. Approximately $1 million is expected to be available from ACF in funds appropriated for fiscal year 2002. ACF estimates that this level of funding will support between 5 and 8 awards with total budgets (including indirect costs) ranging from $125,000 to about $250,000 for short-term projects. The closing date for submitting applications under this announcement is July 22, 2002. For additional background and application requirements, please see the June 7 FEDERAL REGISTER at http://frwebgate.access.gpo.gov/cgi-bin/getdoc.cgi?dbname=2002 register&docid=02-14318-filed

> HHS Awards $30 Million to Help Address Nation's Nursing Shortage

HHS Secretary Tommy G. Thompson has announced a series of grants totaling more than $30 million to increase the number of qualified nurses and the quality of nursing services across the country. The awards will help to ease the shortage of nurses available to provide essential health care services across the country.

HHS' Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) will award grants totaling more than $22 million to colleges, universities and other organizations to increase the number of nurses with advanced degrees and to help improve the quality of care for elderly patients. The $22 million in grants include 324 Advanced Education Nursing Traineeship grants, totaling more than $18.5 million, which support registered nurses in graduate programs who are studying to become nurse practitioners, clinical nurse specialists, nurse-midwives, nurse anesthetists, nurse educators, nurse administrators and public health nurses.

Labor Department and Home Depot Partner To Place Workers In Well-Paying Jobs

U.S. Secretary of Labor Elaine L. Chao and Home Depot Chairman, President and CEO Robert Nardelli announced a National Business Partnership between the Department of Labor and Home Depot to use the network of the workforce investment systems and One-Stop Career Centers to help recruit workers for well paying jobs with Home Depot. The announcement was made via satellite to Home Depot store managers and human resources managers nationwide.

Under the partnership, Home Depot's Human Resources Managers in stores across the country will use the One-Stop Career Centers located in local communities to help fill the 40,000 new jobs Home Depot will have available over the next year in more than 1,300 U.S. stores.

HHS Announces Availability of Funds to Assist Faith-Based and Community Organizations

HHS Secretary Tommy G. Thompson announced the availability of $30 million [in funds] to help level the playing field for faith- and community-based organizations competing for federal grants and other funding. The Compassion Capital Fund represents the first appropriated federal funds that are specifically targeted to assist grassroots organizations since President Bush announced the faith-based and community initiative last year.

Under the Compassion Capital Fund demonstration program, nearly $25 million will be made available to 15-25 intermediary organizations that will provide technical assistance to help faith-based and community organizations to effectively access funding sources, operate and manage their programs, develop and train staff, expand the reach of programs into the community and replicate promising programs. Technical assistance must be offered at no cost to interested organizations.

The remaining $5 million of the Compassion Capital Fund will be used to establish a National Resource Center and to support research into promising practices for intermediary organizations providing assistance to grassroots organizations and into the role that faith-based and community organizations play in their communities

Information on the availability of Compassion Capital Fund grants was published June 7, 2002, in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Grant awards will be made this fall.
